Reasons for Allowance

1. Claims 1-5 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

While Wood (Patent No. 6,178,514) discloses an interface for connecting a device to a bus carrying power and a signal including a universal serial bus which carried both power and signal. A controller determines whether an external power supply is present or not. When no external power supply is detected, the controller communicates to the USB hub that the USB device should be considered as a low power device.

The Universal Serial Bus (USB) Specification teaches a USB standard where all hubs and functions must be able to provide configuration of at least 4.4 volts at a connector. Only low power functions need to operate fully with this minimum voltage. Voltage lower than 4.4 volts may cause damage to a USB device.

And Lynn (newly cited reference "Universal Serial Bus (USB) Power Management") teaches a USB self-powered hubs are required to provide a minimum of 4.75 volts and a maximum of 5.25 volts at downstream ports under a typical loading condition.

None of these references taken either alone or in combination discloses a portable electronic device with a common serial bus connector having all the claimed features of applicant's instant invention, specifically including: capable of receiving a power supply from the information processing device or an external power source as connected to the common serial bus connector or from an internal power source, the portable electronic device being characterized in that the control circuit discriminates among the sources of supply of power and causes the common serial bus controller to execute the predetermined data communication processing while power voltage is greater than or equal to 4.4 volts and is supplied from the information processing device connected to the common serial bus connector, and executes the usual device operation processing while power voltage is less than 4.4 volts and is supplied from the external power source connected to the common serial bus connector. Also, there is no motivation to combine the references to meet these limitations. It is for these reasons that applicant's invention defines over the prior art of record.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
